Undocumented Students

2

- ❑ 2.4 million undocumented children and young adults under the age of 24.
- ❑ 1.8 million were enrolled in grades K-12 in 2006.
- ❑ 65,000 high school graduates a year (The Urban Institute, 2003)
- ❑ 13,000 undocumented high school graduates enroll in public colleges and universities a year (The Urban Institute, 2003)

Uncertain Outlook

- After they finish high school undocumented youth are met with extreme challenges despite having lived most of their lives in the U.S.:
 - ▣ Undocumented students do not qualify for any type of federal financial aid regardless of their academic accomplishments.
 - ▣ They can not legally work.
 - ▣ In most states they must pay international student tuition fees.
 - ▣ They may be deported at any time.

Historical & Legal context

4

- In Plyer v. Doe (1982) the Supreme Court held that, while undocumented children are present in the United States they should not forfeit their education because of their parents' decision to immigrate illegally.

Balancing Work & School

Beatriz

- When I was in high school I had applied to a private school. But being in the situation that I am in, and it's so expensive, I couldn't get scholarships or financial aid. So I decided to go to a community college and this is where I am. And it has been a long 4 years because stuff happens. Like with money, or you have to go to work...somehow it delays itself, but I am going to finish hopefully in one year.

Nailea

- It's been rough. I have been having to pay everything on my own. I have had to take off a couple of quarters because of no money. It's a lot harder than high school. You have to study on your own. You have to find the time and the place.

Rosa

- It's been hard. If it were up to me I would just go to college in finish my career. I hate that I have to work. I hate that I'm unable to concentrate and put one hundred percent of my effort to school because I know that if I did I would have been done a long time ago. I would have been done with my school. Probably practicing my profession. I don't come from a very wealthy family. I have no income or support from my family so I have to work. I would not just be able to go to school and finish my career. I have to come home and go to school at night.

Paulina

- I have a big set of cousins. They all pitch in. So they help me buy books. One of them works at Staples so he tries to get me my school supplies. Just here and there I applied a couple of semesters for scholarships, which won't ask for anything. But it's mainly my dad and my cousin's that help pay for books and utensils and what not. One will buy the textbooks and another will buy something else.

Financial Concerns

15

- Financial challenges are the most frequently cited obstacles by AB540 students.

College Choice driven by financial concerns

16

- Our study shows that Community Colleges are an important gateway to higher education for undocumented students due to their affordable tuition.
 - 46% of college students interviewed are either currently community college students or began their higher education studies at the community college level.
 - In our survey data 45% of participants also began their higher education studies at the community college.

Reducing financial burden in High School

17

- Taking and passing as many AP tests that they can qualify and/or have time for in order to save money and fulfill GE requirements, simultaneously.
- Dual enrollment programs with community colleges.

Student Clubs & Social Networking Sites

- Our data suggest that AB540 student clubs play a critical role for students
 - ▣ Helps students develop connections with other AB540 clubs at 4-year universities
 - Access to peer role models who have successfully transferred
 - Students are able to share information with each other and with clubs from other colleges
